Save the Date — HarperCollins
Save the Date was actually a pretty quick read. I think it took me about 4 hours to read it. It is definitely a young adult contemporary romance and regardless of the less than realistic romances going on throughout the book, it was still entertaining as all get out. When it comes down to it, I would definitely recommend Save the Date.

Father of the Bride meets Sixteen Candles in the latest novel from New York Times bestselling author Morgan Matson. Charlie Grant 's older sister is getting married this weekend at their family home, and Charlie can ' t wait—for the first time in years, all four of her older siblings will be under one roof. Charlie is desperato for one last perfect weekend, before the house is sold and everything changes. The house will be filled with jokes and games and laughs again. Making decisions about things like what college to attend and reuniting with longstanding crush Jesse Foster—all that can wait. She wants to focus on making the weekend perfect. The only problem? The weekend is shaping up to be an absolute disaster. There ' s the unexpected dog with a penchant for howling, house alarm that won ' t stop going off, and a papergirl with a grudge. There are the relatives who aren ' t speaking, the (awful) girl her favorite brother brought home unannounced, and a missing tuxedo. Not to mention the neighbor who seems to be bent on sabotage and a storm that is bent on drenching everything. The justice of the peace is missing. The band will only play covers. The guests are all crazy. And the wedding planner ' s nephew is unexpectedly, distractingly...cute. Over the course of three ridiculously chaotic days, Charlie will learn more than she ever expected about the family she knew by heart. And she ' ll realize that sometimes, trying to keep everything like it was in the past means missing out on the future.

A summer in Aruba, on the beach, in the sun—what else could a girl want? Summer romance, of course! Imagine spending your entire summer vacation on the beautiful island of Aruba. Who could ask for anything more? Well, for Morgan Callahan, spending her entire summer in Aruba with the father, she hardly knows, is barely anything to look forward to. In fact, she is dreading the next few months. Nonetheless, she is in for the time of her life! From secret operatives to fending romance, Morgan is in for some international intrigue!

Fletcher Owens is full of secrets. Few people know he spends his nights volunteering for a Search and Rescue team, saving lives while risking his own. Even fewer know he ' s in love with his best friend ' s sister. And since he ' s not willing to give up their friendship for a chance at something more, that ' s exactly how things will stay. Lexie Sinclair has nothing to hide. The zany daughter, the wacky sister, the quirky fundraiser for a children ' s charity — Lexie couldn ' t hide her true self even if she wanted to. So when her brother ' s best friend is revealed to be a local hero, she ' s determined to stand up and prove she ' s ready to be more than just friends. (37,000 words)

When teenaged sisters Daisy, Violet, and Calla spend their last summer together at Camp Callanwolde, the decisions they make--both good and bad--bring challenges to their relationship as well as opportunities to demonstrate their devotion to one another.

Welcome to Alaska! A special welcome to my boyfriend, Jake, the cutest tourist I've ever met! Explore our natural beauties and untouched wilderness. Jake and I like to hike our great (romantic!) nature trails. . . . Enjoy our perfect skiing and snowboarding conditions. Be sure to catch Will Parker doing his snowboarding tricks. He makes all the girls in town melt. (Except for me. Who needs Will when you've got Jake?) Experience our world-class resorts and spas. While you're there, find out what's up with that hot girl Jake brought to the lodge this year. She's probably just his cousin or something. Right? Get ready for a vacation you'll never forget!

Early on the morning of her eleventh birthday, on the beach beside her North Carolina home, Daria Cato receives an unbelievable gift from the sea—an abandoned newborn baby. When the infant ' s identity cannot be uncovered, she is adopted by Daria ' s loving family. But her silent secrets continue to haunt Daria. Now, twenty years later, Shelly has grown into an unusual, ethereal young woman whom Daria continues to protect. But when Rory Taylor, a friend from Daria ' s childhood and now a television producer, returns at Shelly ' s request to do a story about the circumstances surrounding her birth, something precarious shifts in the small town of Kill Devil Hills. The more questions Rory asks, the more unsettled the tiny community becomes, as closely guarded secrets and the sins of that long-ago summer begin to surface. Piece by piece, the mystery of summer ' s child is being exposed, a mystery that no one involved—not Shelly, Daria, not even Rory—is prepared to face.

In this relentlessly gripping thriller, Compton Crook Award winner Tamara Siler Jones weaves together her unique blend of fantasy, forensics, and suspense to create a world terrorized by a killer out of our darkest nightmares. Now one man must follow a trail of savaged victims to save an innocent life hanging by the slimmest of hopes. . . . One by one, young men in the kingdom ' s outer reaches are vanishing into the dark. So far, two bodies have washed up on the local riverbank. But Dubric Byerly, head of security at Castle Faldorrah, soon realizes there are countless more victims. . . . for it ' s his curse to be forever haunted by the ghosts of those whose deaths demand justice. The latest to vanish is Braoin, a seventeen-year-old painter whose mother came to Dubric ' s aid when he most needed it. All Dubric knows is that the boy is still alive. But time is running out, and it isn ' t only Braoin ' s life hanging in the balance. If Dubric can ' t untangle the twisted web of clues and lies and find his way to the killer, one of his own pages will be the next to die. . . .

Helen Wordmann is homeless and desperate, ready to throw herself in front of a truck. Don Benton, a guy she hasn't seen since their high school prom, offers her a room for the night. His room. With him in it. She'll do anything he wants for another chance at life and takes his offer. But what does he want? Not what she expects. Excerpt: Don heard them as he walked up to the lobby desk-the clerk annoyed, barely civil . . . the woman, distraught and begging. She wore a dress that didn't suit her, and carried a torn and ratty duffel bag. Black tape held her shoes together and a piece of that was coming loose. Tall and very thin she looked, and her dingy brown hair might have been cut by a butcher. He noted every detail with a writer's eye. "Please look again. I sent a money order. Helen Wordmann. You have to have it," the woman said. The clerk replied curtly, but the man heard nothing of his answer. The woman's name stopped him, caught him completely by surprise. Helen Wordmann? It couldn't be, not here, not now, not her. The woman turned, her eyes full of unshed tears. She bumped into him and rushed away without a word. "Can I help you sir?" the clerk asked, but Don was moving, hurrying after the woman. Helen tried to stop the fear, bit her lip, but she couldn't stop the tears. No reservation, no room, what had happened to her money? Ninety-five dollars she had gathered, pennies at a time. There was nothing more to do. Nothing more to endure. She was destroyed, broken by an uncaring clerk, a clerical error, some stupid thing like that. Not only had they lost her money, but there were no more rooms available, not that she could pay for one again. She would go out on the highway. Pick a passing truck and step in front of it. This would have been her salvation, this writer's conference. She would have sold her book here. But now, the night loomed and her stash, the heavy coats and worn out shoes and ragged mismatched socks, was miles away where she had hidden it. Even if she survived the cold, no writer's agent would see her as she was, smelling like a dead fish. Numb defeat wrapped around her heart. "Excuse me. Miss Wordmann?" She turned toward the voice, expecting a manager to tell her to get out of the hotel. But the voice sounded kind, even polite. The man it belonged to looked to be her age and height, but he was well dressed and smiling. There was something else in his face as well. Pity? She'd seen that before in people and taken advantage of it. But this was a different look he had, something she could not identify. He broke into a smile. "Is it you?" he whispered. She wiped the back of her hand across her mouth. "What?" "Helen Wordmann? Is that a married name?" "I'm not married anymore," she said, wondering at the question. "That isn't your maiden name then? Wordmann?" he asked. The hair on the back of her neck began to bristle. Five months of sleeping in the streets had taught her fear. What did this guy want? He had a nice look about him, and was handsome enough. But who was he? "It is my maiden name. I took it back." His face grew tense, but the smile remained. "You're forty-one years old?" Growing more nervous by the minute, she shivered and did not reply. "I'll take that as a yes," he said, "Did you grow up in New York? East Neck, Long Island?" The shiver became wild trembling. What was it about this man? "Yes," she said. "Went to East Neck High School?" "Yes, damn it. Who are you? What do you want?" "I'm attending this writer's conference. I have a room in the hotel." "So?" "I'd like you to share it with me."
